

McGill Defeats Royals 2-1 To Take League Leadership

Originality Will Be Keynote Of Junior Prom This Evening

Merrymakers Will Dance To Strains of Harold Ayers' Orchestra

COMMENCES AT 9:30

Bert Austin, Noted Crooner, Will Sing Several Numbers

Tonight is the night when the biggest college dance of the year—the Junior Prom—will take place. The great event is being held at the Windsor Hotel, at 9:30 p.m., with Harold Ayers' 10-piece orchestra in attendance. The music should be of a very high standard, considering the enviable reputation Ayers and his men have established playing at popular summer resorts and, more recently, other McGill dances.

A special item on the program will be the presentation of several songs by Bert Austin, well-known local crooner and a former radio entertainer, who sang for the Northeastern radio program.

Secure Originality

The committee this year have made every effort to secure originality and as a result, the decorations tonight will be different from those of other Junior Proms. Just how this has been done has not been divulged, but it is certain that everyone will be pleasantly surprised.

The program will consist of 16 dances, as follows:

First Extra	Fox Trot
Second Extra	Fox Trot
1	Fox Trot
2	Fox Trot
3	Waltz
4	Fox Trot
5	Fox Trot
6	Waltz
Supper
Third Extra	Fox Trot
Fourth Extra	Fox Trot
7	Fox Trot
8	Fox Trot
9	Fox Trot
10	Fox Trot
11	Fox Trot
12	Waltz

God Save The King!

Several Patrons
The patrons for the dance are Sir Arthur and Lady Currie, Dean and Mrs. MacKay, Dean and Mrs. Brown, Dean and Mrs. Walsh, Dean and Mrs. Corbett, Dean and Mrs. Johnston, Col. and Mrs. Bovey, Mr. and Mrs. MacDonald, Prof. and Mrs. Sugars, Prof. Traquair.

The University of Toronto will be represented by R. H. MacMurray, President of the Student's Administrative Council. Queen's are unable to send a representative and the University of Western Ontario have not yet been heard from.

Tickets may be obtained for $5.00 from Bill Gentlemen in the Arts Building or the following members of the committee: R. V. C., Miss R. Perry; M.S.P.E., Miss M. Frazee; Medicine, G. Garcelon; Arts, B. Denton; Commerce, D. Butterfield; Dentistry, H. Harris; Law, W. Beckett; Agriculture, E. Burgess; Engineering, Okey Ross. The committee state that the sale of tickets is progressing satisfactorily and everything points to a successful dance. One hundred and two tickets have been sold to date.

Regular Vesper Service To Be Held In Divinity Chapel

Special attention is called to the Vesper Service to be held this afternoon in the chapel of Divinity Hall at the usual time, 5:15 o'clock. This Service offers a splendid opportunity for quiet meditation amidst congenial surroundings. Music is under the direction of Phillips C. Motley, who, in co-operation with the choir, has arranged a suitable musical program. All students are invited.

Intercollegiate Debaters

ISABEL DAWSON and ALICE JOHANNSSEN who will represent McGill here in an intercollegiate debate with Toronto, tomorrow night on the subject of the censorship of motion picture productions.

Eight Co-Ed Teams Debate For College Title Tomorrow

Winnifred Birkett Trophy Awarded To Members Of Winning Team

The women's intercollegiate debating title will be decided tomorrow evening when teams from McGill, Toronto, McMaster and Queen's hold simultaneous debates. Each university will be represented by two teams, one at home and one away from home. Isabel Dawson Arts '33 and Alice Johanssen Dec. '34 will oppose a team from Toronto in the local combat at Convocation hall at 8:30. Marjorie Gowans and Jesse MacLeod both of Arts '33 will debate at Hamilton against the students of McMaster on the same evening to defend the title which McGill won last year.

"That this House approves some form of government censorship of motion pictures" will be the subject of discussion, at all four cities. The two teams of each university will uphold opposite sides of the question. McGill will argue on the affirmative side here, but on the negative at Hamilton. Each speaker will be allowed twenty minutes in which to present her arguments, and the leader of the affirmative will be given five minutes for rebuttal.

Speakers Widely Known

The debaters have had considerable experience. Isabel Dawson, R.V.C. representative to the student's council, and Alice Johanssen, president of her class, debated at Kingston against Queen's University last year. Marjorie Gowans, vice-president of the R.V.C. House of Commons Club, argued against the University of Vermont. Jessie MacLeod, vice-president of the English Literature Society, was a member of the team that opposed the University of Boston.

Miss Elizabeth Monk, Mrs. George Dewey and Lieut. Col. Trihey will act as Judges. In addition to their decision a vote of the audience will be taken to aid in determining the respective merits of the teams.

Trophy To Be Awarded

There will be three judges at each debate and every judge will have one vote. The votes will then be sent to the secretary at McMaster where the decision will be announced. The member of the team with the greatest number of votes will be presented with the Winnifred Birkett trophy, a book with the victor's name engraved on it.

Illustrated Lectures Offered In Holidays

Series Intended Primarily For Children

Once again, during the Christmas holidays, the Physics department of McGill University will offer a series of children's lectures, illustrated by slides and models. These lectures are intended for children of the age of fourteen but adults may attend if they so desire.

Price of tickets is 30 cents for the four lectures or 25 cents each at the door. Seating accommodation is limited, so an early application is advisable.

The lectures will be given on the 26th, 28th, and 30th of December, and the second of January, and the speakers will be Dr. Keys, Prof. Lloyd, Dr. Shaw, and Dean Eve.

Council And Scarlet Key Elections Slated For Coming Monday

Fifty-three Students Remain In Running For Eighteen Positions

FOUR ACCLAMATIONS

More Nominations Received For Less Important Offices

Next Monday, December 5, is the date set for the annual election of representatives to the Students' Executive Council and the Scarlet Key Society. Representatives to the Council will be elected from each faculty. In the case of the Scarlet Key group, qualifications for election are: students must be full undergraduates in the third year of their faculty with the exception of Law in which they must be in their second year. Group B is composed of students one year lower.

As four students were elected unanimously to the Council, eleven names remain to be voted upon. There were no acclamations for the Scarlet Key and the number nominated was considerably greater than for the Council.

Four Already Elected

The four members already elected are Gerald Halpenny, from Medicine; Samuel Cripps, from Dentistry; G. H. O. Mayer, from Theology; and Don McRobbie, from Commerce. Those who will bid for membership in the Council are as follows:

Janet Robson, Alma Howard and Gwendolyn Nicholson, from R.V.C.; Reginald Newton, Philip French and Oakland Ross, from Engineering; Wm. Mitchell and Ralph Wilson Beckett, from Law; Malcolm Ransom and Dean Cornell, from Arts and Science.

Machine Influence Chosen As Topic Of Novice Debate

Beginners' Evening Will Be Held In Union Friday

AN opportunity for beginners to debate with people of their own calibre is being offered by the Debating Union when a special "Beginners' Evening" is held in the Union tomorrow night at 8:15. The subject under discussion will be "Resolved, That the machine has mastered man."

Speakers may choose either side of the subject and will be allowed five minutes in which to air their views. The executive of the Union have made it clear that this time limit will be very strictly observed.

Edison Will Comment

After all the speaking has been done, Alex. Edison, a former president of the Debating Union will make a few comments on the style of the speakers and offer some constructive criticism.

It is expected that a good many students will avail themselves of this opportunity to gain some experience in public speaking in company where they will not feel out of their depth. A similar evening, held last year, was well attended.

Must Sign Lists

Lists have been posted in the Arts Building and in the Union Tuck Shop and these must be signed by all who wish to speak before five o'clock today.

Railways Offer Low Rates For Holidays

Price For Return Is One And A Quarter Single

Students from out of town who desire to visit the parental homes during the Christmas holidays will have an added incentive in the unusually low rates being offered by the various Canadian transportation systems.

In short, return tickets will be sold the holiday-makers at the price of one and a quarter times the regular one way fare, the only limitation being a minimum charge of one dollar. Tickets are good from the first to the last day of the holidays although the going trip must be made within three days of the close of the college session.

Application forms for this reduced rate may be obtained from the East Wing.

Files To Lecture

Will Speak On Recent Poetry This Evening

Dr. Files, of the Department of English, will speak on recent poetry in Great Britain and Ireland this evening in Tudor Hall. This is the fourth in a series of lectures on "Some Living Forces In Modern Literature."

Today's lecture will deal with the question of the survival of poetry, the need for fresh experience and for closer adjustment to the modern world, contemporary tendencies, and the work and influence of the leading poets.

Engineers To Hear Talk On "Business" By Col. C. G. Porter

"THE Engineer in Business" will be the subject of an address to the Engineering Faculty next Monday at twelve o'clock in Room 33 of the Engineering Building. The speaker will be Lt.-Col. C. G. Porter, D.S.O., prominent in the local building industry.

Col. Porter graduated from McGill in 1911 with a degree in metallurgy but he did not long pursue his chosen course. Shortly after graduation he became connected with the building materials business with which he has since been connected.

The lecture, which is sponsored by the Mining and Metallurgical Society is open to all engineering students and Prof. French has cancelled his lecture in order to make the room available. It is expected that a number will attend.

English Department Presents Treasure Island On Saturday

R. L. STEVENSON'S romance of buccaneers, mutiny and adventure in the South Seas, "Treasure Island," will appear before an audience of Montreal Children in Moyses Hall on Saturday afternoon. Two additional children's performances will be given on Dec. 10 and 17, while the adult public will be permitted to attend on Dec. 8.

This play is being produced under the combined direction of the English Department and the Department of Extra-Mural Relations. It has a cast numbering 27 and includes three acts, taking place in the Admiral Benbow Inn, aboard the ship Hispaniola, and on Treasure Island, respectively.

Tickets for all performances are priced at 50 cents and may be obtained in the East Wing of the Arts Building.

Crutchfield Scores Two For Redmen

Maurice Powers Performs Sensationally in Collegians' Citadel

VICTORIAS CONQUER COLUMBUS BY 2-1

MacQuisten Scores Lone Counter For Royals — MacKenzie Shines

McGILL moved into command of the Senior Group last night by virtue of a hard-earned 2-1 victory over Royals. After battling through two scoreless periods, the Redmen assumed a two goal lead early in the third frame, which lead was cut to one goal midway through the period, but the determined Red shirts withstood the substituted Royal attack during the final minutes and preserved their slim margin until the final whistle blew.

Crutchfield, Powers Shine

Nels Crutchfield and Maurice Powers stood out as the stars of the crimson-hued squad, Crutchfield scoring both goals for his team and Powers performing in a sensational manner in the McGill cage. The tall custodian was in rare form, stopping shots from every angle and several times smothering the Royals' driver when they looked to be sure counters. Early in the third Bill McKenzie stepped through the entire red team only to have the redoubtable Maurice block his shot with a beautiful falling block when the husky defenceman seemed due to tie up the score.

Vics defeated Columbus in a recent first game by one goal, the final score being 2-1. Town and Copland tallied for Victorias while Stu Kelly scored the lone counter for the Irishmen. Vics are now tied with Royals for third place, each with three points. Columbus are still winless, having lost three straight games.

First Period

Both Royals and McGill were slow to get going and played cautious hockey during most of the first two sessions. Many dangerous looking rushes were perpetrated by the opposing lines and many scrambles took place but Coulter and Powers handled everything in capable fashion. The red team looked the better, Shaughnessy and Melkiejohn combining well in front of Powers and the two wing lines carrying most of the play into Royals' territory.

Twenty-seven seconds after the commencement of the final frame Nels Crutchfield sailed down the right lane and put McGill one goal up with a hard shot that caromed into the net after hitting Johnny Coulter's skate. Play speeded up despite the fact that the poor ice hampered the puck carriers greatly and Royals went gunning for a counter to put them back in the fight. The Bellmen continued to attack, however, and "Big Crutch" tallied a second goal five minutes later, shoving the rubber past Coulter on a pass from Kenny Farmer. Wilson was with the timers when this play took place.

Penalties were handed out freely during the third stanza but all were minors. Royals drew four to McGill's three. Melkiejohn, McGill, and Crutchfield were the McGill offenders while Delahay and Wilson of Royals each got two enforced rests.

MacQuisten Scores

Doug MacQuisten beat Powers on a pass from McKenzie after the former western flash had been slowed up by the red rear-guard, and cut the lead to a single point. The shot came from a scramble and Powers had no chance to intercept it. With less than seven minutes to go Gus Ogilvie urged his team to great heights but they were unable to garner the much needed tying goal and the redmen skated off with their third successive win, again earning the decision by a single goal.

The whole red team looked good last night. Only nine men were dressed for the fray, Johnny Riddell remaining on the sidelines in the interests of the juniors. Kenny Farmer donned his uniform and turned in another fine game along with Tommy Robertson. Both players traveled at top speed, checking and attacking to advantage. Jack McGill, Hughie Farquharson and Gordie Crutchfield kept up a continual barrage of shots on Royals' net while they were on and held their powerful opponents well in check. Many times this trio had scoring chances spoiled by Coulter in Royals' cage.

Odd Rays Of Dying Tissues Described By Dr. Lepeschkin

Ends Compulsory Fresh Attendance

Queen's Art's Society Abolishes Much-Disputed Regulation

SOME CONTROVERSY

Executive Feel Move Is Severe Blow To Society

Compulsory freshmen attendance at the regular meeting of the Arts Society of Queen's University was abolished at a special meeting held yesterday. Flamboyant posters announcing this important meeting made their appearance several days ago, but failed to attract a large representation from the sophomore, junior or senior years. Freshmen naturally resented this rule of compulsory attendance at eighty per cent.

Japanese To Visit McGill Gest Library

Chinese Manuscripts To Be Inspected By Oriental Officials

Dr. On Shionoya, professor of Chinese classics of the Imperial University of Tokyo, Japan, and Shigemitsu Iwamura of the Japanese Foreign Office, formerly Japanese consul of Nanking and at present Chinese Secretary at the Japanese Legation in Peking, will pay a special visit to the Gest Chinese Library at McGill University on Sunday morning to view the large collection of Chinese manuscripts and documents in the Gest collection.

Iyemasa Tokogawa, Japanese Minister to Canada, will accompany these two distinguished Orientals on their tour of the library. Dr. Kiang Kiang-Hu, head of the department of Chinese Studies at McGill and Miss Nancy Lee Swann, curator of the Gest collection will conduct them around in their short visit to the university.

Arts Seniors Dine

Tees Is Valedictorian Erskine Historian

Bert Tees was elected class valedictorian, and Wally Erskine class historian, of the graduating class of Arts and Science, at an Arts '33 class dinner held in the Union Grill Room last night, prior to the McGill-Royals hockey game.

About 30 members of the class attended the dinner, at which James Anglin, class president, presided. He announced some of the tentative plans of Arts '33 for the season, which include, among other social gatherings, a dance.

Thursday Colloquium

The ninth special graduate lecture in the Physics Department will be given this afternoon when Dean A. S. Eve will lecture on "Newton's Principia." The lecture will take place at five o'clock in room 210 of the Physics Building. All interested are invited to attend.

Noted Botanist Will Join Staff Of McGill In Near Future

A new interpretation of the mysterious rays emitted by living tissues and recently described, for example, by Professor Otto Rahn, of Cornell University, is offered by Dr. W. W. Lepeschkin, of the University of California, who is coming to McGill within the next month as research associate in the department of Botany. Dr. Lepeschkin has been engaged in botanical, physiological research in California and is the author of several books in the field of the application of colloid, physics and chemistry to plant physiology.

Dying Tissue

The rays are produced, Dr. Lepeschkin believes, not by living or growing tissues, but by living matter at the instant when it dies. Several years ago the Russian physiologist, Dr. Alexander Gurwitsch, discovered that living onion roots can influence other onion roots placed nearby. Professor Rahn has shown that finger tips and other parts of the human body, even human eyes, can emit rays which kill living yeast cells, like the ancient legend of the "evil eye."

No one previously has been able to photograph these rays but Dr. Lepeschkin believes that he has done so by recording the effect of a culture of dying cells on some of the sensitive chemical called silver bromide. Death of the culture cells either by cooking or by chemicals such as ether, alters the silver bromide in the same way that ultra-violet rays would do. What happens, Dr. Lepeschkin believes, is that the death of the living protoplasm involves chemical decompositions which broadcast a sudden burst of rays resembling ultra-violet rays, like the flash of light from an explosion. Professor Rahn's human rays, this view suggests, probably were produced by the moment-by-moment death of some cells in the eye or the finger tip rather than by the birth of new cells. If human eyes could see these death rays the sudden death of an egg in a frying pan or of a potato in boiling water would be marked by a burst of light, while dying human beings would glow dimly for hours as the living protoplasm of each organ in turn succumbed to dissolution.

R.V.C. French Club Will Feature Songs

Weekly Conversation Groups Have Been Organized

The singing of French songs will be the chief attraction at the next meeting of the Societe Francaise, which will be held on Thursday afternoon in the R.V.C. Common Room. Song books will be supplied, so that all may take part in the fun. The executive have been working to get the organization running smoothly, and to make the programs as interesting as possible.

Apart from the regular monthly meetings, the Societe has inaugurated French conversation groups which meet once a week for one hour. The first of these met last Thursday, when the first and second years got together to "parler Francais." Today the third and fourth years will have an opportunity to show off their speaking ability, when the group meets at 3 o'clock.

Broken Dates

IN connection with the extraordinarily serious debates of the Freshettes, so recently past, it is very interesting to the casual observer to notice yet another example of the apparent popularity of the mis-named cave-man. This instance is made the more intriguing as it lends colour to the belief that civilization has brought with it an inevitable complication of our mental processes; for the cave-man can introduce his unreasoning tactics into the very home of reason, and in place of his club can carry around an easily ejected supply of the blackest bile imaginable. This he keeps carefully stored, with a view to using it on ceremonial occasions. He can with its help lacerate the emotions, and unbalance the sense of proportion of his victim no less effectively than his ancestor maimed the recalcitrant beloved with physical chastisement.

The most ceremonious of these occasions is that of the horrifying "broken date," a most amorphous and punishable offence, but one which has no terrors for your cave-man. For his self-assertion, aided by the insanity to which he seems to reduce the offender with commendable alacrity, is immune. He blusters and rages; he insinuates gently and tactfully the tragic state of affairs that would result were his deity withdrawn; he further implies, when his skirmishing has taken effect, that so undesirable a state will speedily follow his words, if immediate contrition and repentance do not appear. He looks too heroic, too righteous, too precious to be lost thus; and the poor victim relinquishes her self-respect, and counts it gain that such a prodigy of masterliness should still deign to descend to her from Olympus.

The eventual result is clear. No longer will the trust be a matter of fluttering pulse, followed by the wild ecstasy of arrival; no more will it form a subject for the effusions of a later Gertrude Stein (will you come, beloved, beloved will you come? etc.). Reduced to punctuality and an irksome constancy, lost to any sense of free-will or decency, the impatient virgins of tomorrow will clock in on time, and realize their shortcoming and late-comings will meet the punishment they deserve. Varium et Mutabile will become an empty gag, and civilization will have committed its next misdemeanor.

Of course, perhaps they like it?

Anti-Student Feeling

IT is a truism that man distrusts what he cannot understand. The entire why and wherefore of the modern university is unfortunately quite incomprehensible to a vast number, and so a great deal of mud is flung, quite undeservedly, at the whole system of higher education. Attacks on the incomprehensible by the ignorant are nearly always absurd, and so often are the attacks on the modern university by individuals who have never trod a campus.

This is, of course, an age of "knocking," but surely the universities of today are being forced to bear more than their fair share of the storm. The professor is generally able to rise above any manifestations of public disapproval by an assumption of an attitude of detachment, but the undergraduate has not always this refuge.

To take a case not so far from home,—the people of Ontario are taxed for the upkeep of the University of Toronto. In consequence there are a great many of them who have come to regard it as an expensive luxury and any "Varsity man" will tell you that there is little love for him and his kind in the breasts of many Torontonians. Perhaps if the good citizens of Montreal were forced to pay a similar tax their faces might be clouded with a scowl instead of being wreathed with smiles as they gaze at the occasional antics of gregarious students.

But the time does come, nevertheless, when the McGill student is brought into contact with this intangible, omnipresent wall of opposition—and that is when he goes out to look for a job. At a time when unemployment is rife it is manifestly unfair that the student should be still further handicapped by an unreasonable prejudice, which is what the discrimination of an employe sometimes amounts to.

Grim experience has often taught the graduate that it would be far better for him never to mention the fact that he is the holder of a degree.

The BOOK SHELF

Et O Ces Voix D'Enfants, Chantant

"OXFORD POETRY 1932." Edited by R. Goodman. Basil Blackwell, Oxford. 55 pp. 3 s. 6 d.

"Oxford Poetry 1932" has reached us. All the little Oxford egos plunge themselves once more in this their annual pageant of poetry. All but C. S. Brown and H. Smith feel bitterly that they are intellectuals going to waste in an unappreciative world; all but H. Smith are uneasy in their aloofness.

H. Smith's "Commentary on Jude" is undoubtedly the best poem in the book. It is a powerful unit in sentiment and construction, it is full of music arising from a deft handling of vowel sounds. Its figures are good, its sentiments true, the emotion is strong and well mastered. The poem shows a marked influence of T. S. Eliot but does not suffer from it. I quote a few stanzas:

..... the dim procession stalks like a wakened mural arabesque.

For all the beauty that their hearts have known

Parades on silken feet beneath these skies

Of mouldering silver. Weary and alone

They keep their faith with beauty and are wise.

And so they make their pilgrimage

Who know no other loveliness than this

White softness of the breasts that silver opens

And fragrance of a mercenary kiss.

Gin on the gramophone

Scent in the stew,

Four-and-twenty night hawks

Walking for a Jew.

When the stew was opened

Wasn't that a spicy dish

Four-and-twenty night hawks

Walking in the rain

One for the mid-wife

Three to meet a train

And one for the little boy

Who cries down the lane.

That is a lot to quote from a poem. But I do so because it is the best in poetic quality, and its mood is typical — defiant, satirical.

There are two very fine sonnets by C. S. Brown who has sought objectivity in historical retrospect, and solace from the mockeries of Christianity in the music it has inspired. K. N. Cameron grows satirical about the lack of heroes worthy of a poet's praises — and does it well. Malcolm Easton shows a knack for description in "Kensington Interior" and "The Wardrobe," as does also R. Trevor in "Maitland." A. Lloyd Owenlin "Vagrant" portrays well the loneliness, the weariness and despair of the individual in the callous crowd. — And I think I have given honour where honour is due.

On the whole "Oxford Poetry 1932" deserves favourable comment. There is nothing new in it; but what there is, is for the most part done well. There are a few scrawny things that one is tempted to leap upon; but we'll let them pass; and there is only one real lapse into sentimentalism, which we'll leave you to discover for yourself. The book bears the stamp common to all modern poetry, showing itself as the product of men just managing to maintain themselves against a crushing environment. They cling to their dreams, they are defiance, they marvel at themselves, they sneer, they cannot rise above their lot and create — though they have courage.

Idealism For Young America

FORGIVE US OUR TRESPASSES, BY Lloyd C. Douglas. Thomas Allen, Publisher, Toronto. 369 pp. Price $2.00.

The time has passed when a writer of intelligence would try to justify religion — and its concomitant ethical rules — in a sickly, dogmatic, and morally instructive story. Modern novelists are obliged to evince considerable respect for sin; they must not chastise it unwarrantedly, nor dismiss it summarily. He who wishes to point a moral must do so with circumspection, must look on evil open-mindedly, and finally — but not too finally — may, if he simply has to, conclude that after all there is something to be said for propriety and adherence to religious beliefs.

Thus the author of "Forgive Us Our Trespases." He readily accepts the view that conventional, rigid, ecclesiastical rectitude is impotent as opposition to the pleasures of the flesh, and to cynical agnosticism. Not a hackneyed narrow doctrine, but a simple human faith is the cure. And that faith comes because sin is found wanting, and cynicism fails — and also, it seems, because somewhere is waiting a beautiful girl, with a pure and trusting heart.

The moral lesson pointed out by this book is rather unconvincing. It depends too much on the afore-mentioned beautiful girl, and to the equally sentimental device of a dead mother, who, before her son is born, composes for his benefit a valedictory effusion that reinstates God in the scheme of things. But if the story fails in its didactic aspects, it is still a story, vivid, swiftly moving, and infused with humor, epigrams, and thought-teasing contentions.

Perhaps a little too vivid. Dr. Douglas throws in adjectives with a careless generosity, luscious unexpected adjectives. He revels in descriptions.

"The convex lid of the antiquated trunk was thrown back against the dingy wall, and the welcome attack of unpacking proceeded; his meager, outmoded wardrobe, a handful of books, a dozen cheap towels, and the case of carving tools, over which there had been such a row, Aunt Martha's eloquent disapproval rending the Yuletide peace and reaching an impassioned climax in the unexecuted threat to carry the expensive gift back to that high-n-mighty Mrs. Day with her own hands."

This isolated example cannot prove anything, but it makes one feel sorry for commas.

Dr. Douglas hands out a very large chunk of American life in this novel, gives some fascinating accounts of intellectuals, comments caustically on some of the eccentricities of civilization, and excels in the realistic reporting of conversation. Its a powerful effort to get at youth, and make use of youth's idealism. It may amuse you, perhaps engross you, but I doubt that it will "change" you.

Marginalia

THE lives of Lawrence multiply and threaten to fill the face of the earth. All, except one were written by women. — Interpret that as ye wish. The latest is "The Savage Pilgrimage" by Catherine Carswell, "an artist herself." The book was suppressed in England, and ought to sell well on this account. It is about time that someone competent enough, a critic without a moral metaphysical or sexual axe to grind, undertake an estimate of D. H. Lawrence as a personality and as a force in literature.

BERNARD DeVoto in "Mark Twain's America" dissents sharply from Van Wyck Brooks' position in the "Ordeal of Mark Twain." He considers in detail the life of the frontier, especially its literature, and his findings differ from the "repressed" view of Brooks and others. Mark Van Doren in a review of the book all but cuts Mr. DeVoto in little pieces and throws them to the dogs.

SAMUEL Butler, — he of the Fleishy Way, — has a nephew. This nephew writes. His name is H. T. Butler, and his latest production is a slender volume entitled "The Existence and Immortality of the Soul." He appeals for proof by recounting observation drawn mainly from the largest volume in the world — the Book of Nature. It seems that the sense of the uncies is not visited upon the nephews, not even unto the first generation.

A SYMPOSIUM on "Sex in the Arts," edited by J. F. MacDermott and Kendall B. Taft, has recently appeared under the Harper imprint. The contributors consider the influence of sex on the artist and the mode of dealing with it in his art, the changes in the attitude of the public toward sex in general and its treatment in art in particular and the part played by the artist in effecting that change.

ALFRED A. Knopf has begun a series of poetry chapbooks. Each chapbook will contain an unpublished poem by a living American or English poet illustrated by original drawings or etchings. They will sell for 50 cts. each. The series begins with "Before March" by Archibald MacLeish.

"THE Memoirs of Hector Berlioz" were issued recently by Knopf in New York. The English translation is edited by Ernest Newman the eminent English music critic. Berlioz possessed, besides his undisputed mastery of music, a forceful literary style, and his memoirs constitute a valuable record of the artistic life of his day as well as a picture of the development of a personality.

Correspondence

The Editor, McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:

In yesterday's issue of the Daily your editorial entitled "Defunct" contained an erroneous statement which I am anxious to rectify. The Societe Francaise is more active this year than it has been for some time, and inasmuch as I am the "member of the executive" referred to in your article, I feel that it is my duty to correct the impression you created.

My answer to the question put to me, namely, "What are your plans for the next meeting?" was not that we had none, but that I did not know which of our programs was scheduled for our next gathering. Rather than give you the wrong program, I thought that it would be wiser to say that I did not know what it was to be.

You, however, took it upon yourself to interpret my answer in a manner which would satisfy your plan for a scorching editorial. May I be so presumptuous as to advise so learned a body as the editorial board of the McGill Daily to consider the old adage, and look before they leap. It may be well for them to inquire fully into matters before daring to criticize it. Furthermore, in my humble opinion, to use an expression such as "Kick in the pants" in the editorial column of "The oldest college Daily in Canada" is rather inadequate and undignified, to say the least.

Thanking you for your valuable space, which I am sure you could use to better advantage.

Sincerely yours,

Beatrice A. Klineberg,

Vice-President.

The Editor,

McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:

The McGill Daily apparently has nothing better to do than cast totally unfounded slams at campus organizations. An editorial in yesterday's Daily stated that the Societe Francaise has no plans for year, hinted that the Executive was incompetent, and that the Society was generally in a dazed, dead, and apathetic condition.

May I suggest, Mr. Editor, that it is well to be sure of one's facts before making slanderous accusations. At the meeting of the McGill Women's Student Association this fall, a representative of the Societe Francaise gave an outline of the society's activities for the year. The Societe has already held one general meeting which was well attended (in spite of the far-famed student apathy), and is also sponsoring conversation and discussion groups. The group for First and Second years met last Thursday and keen interest was shown. The "incompetent executive" is responsible for this program which is an innovation this year.

As the Daily has persisted in changing the time and place of the Societe's meetings without bothering to consult the executive, one would think that it would try to print notices correctly before belittling other organizations.

Yours truly,

Constance Hobbs,

President, Societe Francaise.

The Editor,

McGill Daily,

Dear Sir:

Somebody once remarked "La critique est facile; l'art difficile" and it is not an unknown fact that criticism in order to be of any use whatsoever must at least be constructive to some extent, in order to claim any justification for existence. If this is the case, the greater part of this morning's editorial, bearing the dramatic head "Defunct!" might have been omitted.

I will confine myself to the special references made to the Foreign Affairs Club. It is useless to accuse the executives of the campus clubs, beyond a certain point. Granted that many of them may be lacking in initiative, or may be unqualified to carry out their functions, there are on the other hand many who, regardless of their qualifications, try to take their duties, seldom self-imposed, seriously. Regardless of the ability of the individual executives, they all to a greater or lesser extent depend on the "Daily" to help them. This the "Daily" has not always done. On days when there has been ample space on the front page of the "Daily," as indicated by the liberal use of absolutely irrelevant matter as filler, advances on the activities of this club have been relegated to the back page or even the insignificance of the "Notice" column. As members of the staff have admitted, this has been entirely unnecessary. An executive may be largely to blame, but no matter how influential he may be with the student body, or how general his contacts with the other students may be, it is impossible for him to get in touch with all those who might be interested in the activities of his club. For this he looks to the "Daily" to help him, and this the "Daily" has not by any means always done.

The Foreign Affairs Club has not held its last meeting by a long shot. To be exact, there is to be one held this coming Tuesday, and for the benefit of those interested, and in case the "Daily" again falls down on its duties, — I might mention that the subject will deal with the situation in present-day revolutionary Spain. It will be dealt with by a man who is well-known on the campus as the founder of the newly-formed Spanish club, and who spent considerable time in that country, enabling him to talk with the authority of personal experience. The club will welcome all those who are interested in this phase of modern interest.

Hoping that your paper gives a little closer co-operation in the future, I remain Sir, yours

—H.M.S.

P.S.—There is a tendency to give considerable more prominence to reports than to advances. I think the executives of other clubs will agree with me that a good advance is worth far more to them than a lengthy report which will be forgotten the next day in any case.

Schaffhausen.

(Ed. Note:—There is also a tendency for more facts to be available after an event than before it.)

50-Year Study Of Apples Being Held

A fifty-year study of forty varieties of apples is being conducted at the University of Vermont. The study is being made at the Agricultural Experiment Station under the direction of Prof. M. B. Cummings head of the horticultural department of the University. Already the project has been under way over twenty-five years of its allotted span.

The object of the study is to ascertain a half-century performance of different varieties of apples to see what ones produce the most over this long period of time and what varieties give the most regular crops and the highest percentage of marketable fruit.

The first quarter-century study of this variety orchard was published a short time ago in a bulletin from the University which showed that the heavy bearing varieties from the twentieth to the twenty-fifth year of orchard life were red astrachan, fameuse, yellow transparent, Mann, McIntosh, and Tolman sweet. All of these varieties with the exception of Mann were in the lead during the full twenty-five years.

In commenting on the result thus far secured, Professor Cummings says the first quarter-century growth and yield of a given variety may or may not tell the whole story as to its profitability but the first half century record should certainly give ample testimony as to its productivity. It is, therefore, the intention to continue these trials for an indefinite period and to add to the list of varieties many new and promising ones as time and facilities permit. In the list of varieties studied there are such veterans, as Rhode Island greening, Baldwin Tolman sweet, northern spy, and such newer sorts as Melba, Macoun, Starking, McIntosh, Staymard, Harolson, Medina, golden, and red delicious.

Red Poloists Play Double Bill Tonight

Meet M.A.A.A. Squads In Last Encounter Before Intercollegiate

McGILL HOME GAMES AT COLUMBUS TANK

"Old Boys" Scheduled To Play Seniors on Dec. Fifteenth

AS a prime conditioner for the intercollegiate tilt on Saturday, McGill senior poloists stack up against the M.A.A.A. polo squad in a league fixture tonight. The juniors also see action, meeting the M. A. A. A. Reds, class of the junior league, both games being played at the K. of C. tank. They are home matches for the Redman and no charge will be made to student spectators.

The M.A.A.A. first stringers have been a power to reckon with during the current season. They have given every senior league team a run for their money, and it was they who toppled the previously undefeated Y.M.H.A. crew, last week, to the tune of 6-2. In two previous matches with the collegians they registered decisive wins by scores of 4-0 and 8-1, respectively.

Red Team Improved

Some good polo is expected of the Redmen, however, considering the improvement they displayed in their last game against Columbus, when they lost out by 4-3. A week of diligent practice for the Toronto game has put the boys in prime shape, and the Winged Wheelers will have to hustle if they expect to emerge victorious.

The intercollegiate line-up has been definitely chosen and the team which lines up tonight against the M.A.A.A. squad in the city league fixture, is the selection for the Toronto game. The coach has had a hard time choosing the best possible combination of players, especially since there is such a plethora of senior material on hand. However, no matter what men line up, they are determined to take a firm hold on the intercollegiate championship by a win in the initial match of the two-game series.

Juniors Have Task

The junior game will probably prove a hard one for the Redmen. Their opponents, the M.A.A.A. Reds, have swept all opposition before them, this season. In fact, the clear cut scores by which they have defeated their opponents indicates without question that they are head and shoulders above any other junior team in the city league. Each man of the Wheeler aggregation is of senior calibre, and coupled with several seasons of league competition, the team has proved itself almost invincible. The Red juniors will do their best, however, to prevent, at least, a repetition of their last game with the Wheelers, when the McGill lads were swamped under a grand total of 18 goals.

The polo activities of the Redmen for this season end up with a rush of competitive games. Following their return from the Toronto Varsity tilt, a doubleheader is scheduled for Monday evening against the Y.M.H.A. teams. The following Thursday both Red teams meet the Columbus aggregations. Next Saturday, the return intercollegiate tilt is on the program for the senior poloists; and two days later, on Monday, the two teams finish up their league schedule in games against M.A.A.A.

Old Boys' Match

A final game that should be of considerable interest to polo fans is an old boys' match, scheduled for the 15th of this month. Players on past McGill polo teams provide the opposition to the senior poloists, and an interesting game usually results. Possibly later in the season an interfaculty league will be started, like that provided last year. This should prove popular, especially since there have been a great many newcomers this year anxious to play polo. This league would prove invaluable in teaching many prospective players the fine points of the game, and produce good material for next year's junior team.

The following is the line-up for tonight's game:

Seniors	Juniors
Wayland.....goal.....	Tessier.....
Shaw.....defence.....	Percy.....
Cross.....defence.....	Smythe.....
McLean.....half.....	Dukes.....
Stein.....centre.....	MacLure.....
Freeman.....forward.....	Silverstone.....

Shapiro.....alternate.....
French.....alternate.....

SPORT TALKIE

By The Sports Editor

WE HAVE received the following letters concerning a column which was published on this page in yesterday's issue:

Sports Editor,
McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,
The column in yesterday's Daily which appeared under the title "Skirts in Sports" was entirely without foundation, and quite incorrect in its material. The R.V.C. basketball squad has been practising for about one month now. The four teams posted on the M.W.S.A.A. notice board at the R.V.C. were arranged to facilitate practice only and are not college teams in any sense of the word. The College teams have not been chosen and they will not be for at least another week.

With respect to the hockey write-up, we regret that the onerous duty of hockey coach has been incorrectly assigned by the Daily to Stew Ebbitt. While not belittling his ability in this line, he must confess that no coach has so far been appointed by the Athletic Board. We hope that in future the Daily will obtain its material from official sources before publishing it.

(Signed): Sally Hay
(Basketball Manager and Pres. M.W.S.A.A.)
Zerada Slack
(Faculty Member Women's Athletic Board).

Sports Editor,
McGill Daily,

Dear Sir,

In reference to the article "Skirts in Sports," which appeared in this morning's issue of the Daily, I would like to take exception to the statement in which it was stated that I would coach the R.V.C. hockey team this winter. This statement was entirely without foundation and I would like to suggest that in future statements appearing in your paper should be verified before going to press.

Sincerely,
Stuart N. Ebbitt.

We regret that the writer of the column "Skirts in Sports" made such glaringly inaccurate statements as those appearing in yesterday's Daily. We hope that the publication of these letters will clear up any misunderstanding.

Rumour Unfounded

A CANADIAN PRESS despatch from Toronto today states that "Lew Hayman, honorary coach of Toronto Argonauts, will be appointed physical director of McGill University." Just where the Toronto scribes managed to get this information is a mystery. This afternoon, Sir Arthur Currie stated that there was no foundation whatsoever to the rumour. Dr. A. S. Lamb and Major Forbes also stated that they knew nothing at all about this rumoured change.

Track Meet With Boston

COACH VAN WAGNER announced yesterday morning that the McGill track team will meet Boston University in an Indoor Track Meet on March 11th. This will be the first time that a Red track team has ever competed in an International Meet in the U.S.A. Due to the fact that American Colleges hold their track activities in the spring and Canadian Universities in the fall it has been almost impossible to hold such a meet before. The McGill track squad will likely train in the M.H.S. with a trial meet later in one of the larger Montreal armories. The events will be restricted to the track and a programme of five events has been drawn up.

Off To An Early Start

WITH the annual meeting held yesterday the winter training programme of the Rowing Club is scheduled to start soon. An attempt will be made this year to attract more men to the sport. Rowing requires almost a complete year's training. Besides this members of the crew must live together for practically the whole summer. These difficulties tend to discourage candidates from turning out. The executive of the club hope to be able to make arrangements so that these hindrances may be overcome.

Another Hockey Team

WITH the consent of the Athletic Board an intermediate team has been entered in the West-End Hockey League. Entrance into this league will mean that the seconds will have a chance to develop their ability and a valuable training ground for material for the senior team established. The League operates on Friday evenings in the Loyola Stadium in N.D.G. The season is due to start on the 16th of this month. A schedule will be drawn up at a later date.

Several Newcomers Out For Wrestling

Heavies And Light Men Needed On Squad

LAPIN RETURNS

THE WRESTLING CLUB is at present enjoying an unprecedented wave of popularity and the Field House is swarming with aspirants to the squad. Coach Smith is in his element sending the men through their paces and hopes to build up one of the strongest mat teams that ever wore the Red colours.

The newcomers to the squad have now absorbed all the rudimentary holds and theory of wrestling and the coach is thus enabled to demonstrate the more complicated points. The result is that not only have the beginners shown a new lease of life but the veterans now think it worthwhile to put in an appearance. The coach is undoubtedly gratified at the enthusiastic response of his charges and makes no bones about it.

White Good

Each man at yesterday's practice was again compelled to show how much he knew of the holds shown so far by the coach in a bout with an evenly matched opponent. Coach Smith stopped many a bout when the contestants made too flagrant a mistake, taking time out to show them the right method of the hold in question. White continued to show his effective form and looks one of the most promising of the coach's pupils.

Lapin put in an appearance and proved a welcome addition to the fold. He has done considerable competitive wrestling and has twice been crowned Intercollegiate champion. His presence on the squad will add that touch of experience necessary to round out any team with championship aspirations.

Heavies Needed

Although most of the positions are well fortified with aspirants, there is a decided lack of material in the heavyweight and 118-lb. classes. Any men weighing over 175 pounds or under 118 are urged to turn out and place themselves under the care of Coach Smith. If they have any reluctance or bashfulness about so doing they might remember that Coach Smith has built up many champions in their first year of competition.

R. V. C. Hockeyists Hold First Practice At Mt. Royal Arena

Much Promising Material Uncovered Among Women Players

WALBRIDGE MANAGER

THE first R. V. C. hockey practice was held yesterday afternoon in the Mt. Royal Arena. There was not a very large turn-out, but the material was promising. There was a general work-out in skating, stickhandling and shooting, for the first half of the hour, but towards the end of the period two teams were formed and a practice game was held. The team is as yet without a goalie, and any woman student interested or with previous experience in this position, would be welcome if she would turn out.

Of those at the practice yesterday, the most promising were Margaret Grant, Roona McKinnon, Beverly Hughes, Edith Walbridge, Gwen Nicholson and Gwen Halpenny. Shirley Stevenson, Jenn Werner and Margaret McCuag were quite promising prospects, and are expected to improve with time.

Edith Walbridge Manager

A meeting of the Athletic Board was held on Tuesday, and Edith Walbridge was appointed hockey manager. The new manager has been an active member of the team for some time, and has always taken a keen interest in R.V.C. hockey.

Due to an erroneous statement in Wednesday's Daily, there has been a slight mix-up concerning coaches. Stuart Ebbitt will not coach the team as previously stated, but there is a coach in view and it is hoped that he will be present at the next practice. Another practice will be held next Wednesday in the Mount Royal Arena.

Basketeers Prepare For Exhibitions Sat.

Play N.D.G. And Y.M.H.A. In M.H.S. Gym

NEW MEN WELCOME

COACH VAN WAGNER put his men through a stiff workout yesterday afternoon in the Montreal High School gym and from the look of the squads the Intercollegiate and City League championships may not be so far away from Old McGill when the season draws to a close.

A lot of old faces are in evidence this season among whom George Falkner, Bob Calhoun and Mel Rice, stars of last year's Intermediate champions, were noted. The City League bunch, which dropped a close decision to Sun Life last Saturday, are playing Y.M.H.A. in the preliminary to the contest between the Intercollegiate and the N.D.G. quintette in the Montreal High School gym next Saturday evening. Both of the invading teams are looked upon to furnish stiff opposition, but the Wagnermen expect to get the call over their opponents.

Squads Not Complete

Don Young has not joined the squad as yet but with him in the fold the team will be just about complete. The reason for some of the players not having reported yet is that the men of the Medical Faculty are having their exams, but with these off their chests the cagers will get down to serious work.

Coach Van Wagner has issued a last call for material and anybody that is interested should come out as the schedule will open soon and when it does open the squads hope to be in perfect shape for another successful year.

especially urged to be present: Ornstein, Flanders, Bernard, Coulserat, Fulcher, Belanger, Barnes, Linton, Wigdor, Leroux and any others who are at all interested. Make a special effort to attend.

INTERCLASS BASKETBALL

A manager for interclass basketball is required at once. Anyone interested is requested to report to Coach Van Wagner immediately.

JUNIOR HOCKEY

There will be a practice of the junior hockey team at the Forum today at one-thirty.

McGill Rowing Club Held Annual Meeting In Union Yesterday

Measures Taken To Ensure Greater Interest In Winter Training

FEES POSTPONED

MOVES to strengthen membership were the main themes of the annual general meeting of the McGill Rowing Club held in the Union last night, which marked the official opening of the winter training season. The turn out, especially of new members was gratifying, and the coming season promises to be a successful one.

With the winter training season opening at the beginning of next week, special measures were taken to ensure interest, the first and most important being a postponement of the collection of the regular fees. In the past, three dollars was collected from each member, to go towards the upkeep of machines and shells.

Full Season Planned

In regard to the summer season, a very full schedule of racing is being arranged by the Rowing Committee, which will include trips to Ottawa, Royal Canadian Henley at St. Catharines, besides several local regattas with the Lachine Rowing Club, and of course, the annual race against Toronto on the Lachine canal next fall.

This was the first meeting at which the new executive, elected last week at the annual closed meeting, presided. The new president is Bill Fry, a graduate who has been with the club since its inception in 1923, vice-president, Jack Butler; secretary, George Jost; and treasurer, Joe Clarke.

A resolution was passed authorizing the secretary to invite the ski team of the Winter Outing Club to make use of the club's machines for their pre-season training. The rowing committee has made all arrangements, set up the machines, and all students are invited to come up to the Field House at any time from three to six in the afternoon and try their hand at rowing.

He has written music for last year's Red and White Revue, and has arranged the music for the violin quartet. He will sing one number with the quartet as well as three items of his won.

Mr. Irving Cooper, director of the Choral Society and the Concert Orchestra, will accompany the vocalists in their selections. This concert is open to students, and as admission is free, a large attendance is expected. The music will start at 8.15.

Senior Football

A meeting of the Senior Rugby team will be held today in the Music Room of the Union at 5.15 for the purpose of electing a captain and manager for the next year. The picture for the Annual will also be considered.

Undeclared Teams Will Debate Tonight

McGill Juniors To Oppose Y.M.H.A. On Back to Land Movement

Tonight a team from the McGill Junior Debating League will meet a team from the Y.M.H.A. on the subject "Resolved That Back to the Land Movement is Desirable." This is one of the regular interclub debates and with both teams having thus far been undefeated this season and with Professor David Howat acting as judge, it promises to be of the highest order. The debate is to start at 8.30 p.m. and John MacLish, President of the Junior Debating League, will act as chairman.

E. C. Kelloway and Philip Vineberg, both of Arts '35 comprise the McGill team and will support the negative, whereas H. Kendall and M. Garmalse uphold the affirmative and represent the Y.M.H.A. A win for either club would practically win a semi-final position in the contest for the E. W. Beatty Cup, which is competed for by five teams, Loyola, the Spoke Club, and the Knights of Columbus being the

Large Turnouts At Gymnasts' Practices

MORE MEN NEEDED

HAY FINDLAY has been getting his Gym team into shape for the last two weeks and it is looking better every day. Gib Stewart, lanky exponent of the side-horse, Bill MacKenzie, captain of last year's Westmount High School gym squad, MacCarthy, Sare and MacDonald are among those that Hay Findlay will look to for another championship this year.

Bob Wallace and George Dodd are helping Mr. Findlay coach the squad and will be prominent when the team squares up against Varsity in the coming Intercollegiate Meet. The practices have been well attended and there are a large number of aspirants for this year's squad, but the coach could use more men and any who are interested are urged to turn out. The squad is being divided into sections in order of merit so that everyone will be given a chance to get lots of practice with others of his own ability, and if they progress sufficiently they will be promoted to a higher section.

McGill has always made a good showing in past Meets and it is expected that they will again be at the top of the heap.

Daily Staff Passes Several Amendments

Paper's Constitution Altered To Provide For New Conditions

COUNCIL MUST RATIFY

Official Sanction Necessary Before Changes Go Into Effect

Amendments to the constitution of The McGill Daily, that bring the constitution into accord with practice, were passed nearly unanimously at a meeting of the Editorial Board and reporters held in the Daily office yesterday afternoon at 5.30. These amendments have yet to receive the approval of the Students' Executive Council before coming into effect.

These amendments do not involve any change in the present policy of the Daily. Chief among them is deletion of the clause that permits only undergraduates to be eligible to positions on the Managing Board, and insertion of a clause that opens positions on the staff to members of the Affiliated Theological Colleges.

Other Changes

Other constitutional changes raise the maximum number of associate editors to twelve, assign the care of the files to the Managing Editor, and make provision for the absence of a Saturday issue.

The present constitution obliges all amendments to be passed by a meeting consisting of half the Editorial Board and ten reporters, before adoption. Yesterday's gathering sanctioned the deletion of the words "and ten reporters," a change which will permit amendments to be made by the Editorial Board alone.

Visiting Japanese Interested In Golf

Eugene, Ore.—Yankee football, golf and politics will be three centers of interest for the three members of the Japan good will tour who arrived in Eugene last night on their trip through the United States. Of course, they are going to study economics and such things, give numerous talks and lectures, and in general build up a better feeling between citizens of the two nations, but that is only during business hours.

The members of the party are T. R. Makiyama, golfer and economist; Kazuyuki Sumomogi, rugby and rowing artist; and Tadayoshi Yamada, politician and orator. Makiyama is 25 years old and the other two are 23.

Sumomogi expressed the first wish of the group, even before they had established themselves in the hotel room—that was to see an American football team in action. He wasn't particular whether it was in practice or a game, but he wants to see these power drives and end runs.

Plays at Golf

Makiyama, when asked what his sport was, said that he "plays at golf" in that tone which means he is not the kind of player to be taken on for a breather match. He didn't bring his clubs along but expects to try out numerous American courses. Yamada had the only regrets of the group. They were due to the presidential election being held too soon.

After the visitors had hung up their suits to get the wrinkles of traveling out, they expressed a desire to see student life as it is outside of classrooms and libraries. They were driven up to one of the restaurants near the campus where they could see students getting a few minutes of relaxation after the grind of the day.

DREISER DECLARES HE CANUPSETGOVERNMENT

San Francisco. — (Special) — Declaring that he could upset the present government "in a minute," Theodore Dreiser, "bad boy" novelist and Communist leader, arrived in San Francisco recently to participate in the Tom Mooney defence rally.

Surrounded by secretaries and cohorts, in a spacious room at the Mark Hopkins hotel, Dreiser was resting for a few hours before leaving for San Quentin to visit Mooney.

When informed of the result of the university straw vote for president, he vigorously denounced student opinion.

"There's something deadly wrong with the rising generation," he declared. "They are too much under the influence of academic tradition. If these straw votes are an actual indication of their attitude, they are unaware of the actual condition of the nation's sickness, as a body. The students should take a double somersault and get over on the side of entire reorganization. They should be on the side of equity, for everyone, not just the poor man."

Students Prejudiced

"The students listen to their professors," he continued, "they read the newspapers, they hear statements golf" in that tone which means he is not the kind of player to be taken on for a breather match. He didn't bring his clubs along but expects to try out numerous American courses. Yamada had the only regrets of the group. They were due to the presidential election being held too soon.

Russia Will Lead the World

"Russia will outrun the world on higher education," he declared. "Their scientists are disinterested enthusiastic workers, paid little, caring little for world recognition, and working only for the good of Russia."

America will accept Communism, "won't think life is a 'clinch,' according when they get to the place where they ing to Dreiser. "There is nothing wrong with the American people," he explained, "but they are having such a good time, they haven't been thinking."

Prophecies Change in Opinion

Explaining his statement that he could upset the government, he said, "If I could get the concentrated attention of the young people for two weeks, if I could show them why they have to sit on park benches in a land that has everything, the revolution would be affected. The younger generation will be convinced through a study of the conditions of the country; the capitalist will give up through fear or a sense of reality. Public opinion will come around."

One of the economic questions in connection with the repeal of prohibition is what will the country do with all its undersized quart bottles? —New York Sun.

Royal Society of Canada Fellowships

Ten annual fellowships, each of $1500, and open on equal terms to men and women, may be awarded in 1932. They are tenable at institutions of learning or research, save in exceptional circumstances, outside Canada. They are available for advanced research in Literature, History, Anthropology, Sociology, Political Economy, or allied subjects, in French or English; and in Mathematics, Chemistry, Physics, Geology, Biology, or subjects associated with any of these sciences.
